The Bulletin

Norwich, Friday, Dec. 8, 1922.

THE WEATHER.

There was a marked fall in pressure Thursday over the eastern half of the country, with centers of minimum pressure Thursday night over Illinois and New Jersey while pressure remained high from the lower St. Lawrence valley southward to Bermuda, and it was high and rising over the northern Rocky Mountain and northern plateau regions. This pressure distribution has been attended by precipitations almost generally over the United States within the last 24 hours except in Florida, New Mexico and portions of Texas and Oklahoma.

The weather has remained abnormally cold throughout the northwest.

In the North Atlantic states, there will be snow or rain with slowly rising temperatures Friday and probably Saturday. In the Middle Atlantic and South Atlantic states, there will be rain Friday and Saturday with rising temperatures. In the West, there will be rain Friday and Saturday with rising temperatures. In the West, there will be rain Friday and Saturday with rising temperatures.

North of Sandy Hook, strong shifting winds possibly of gale force and weather thick with rain or snow Friday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras, from south and southwest and weather overcast with showers Friday.

Forecast.

For southern New England, snow or rain with slowly rising temperatures Friday; Saturday probably rain and warmer.

TAFTVILLE

William A. Aberg of Washington, D. C., formerly of this village, was run into while riding in his roadster in that city recently, by a pair of runaway horses who were speeding to escape federal prohibition officers who were pursuing them. Mr. Aberg's car was damaged beyond repair, but he escaped with a sprained wrist and minor cuts and bruises. The runaway horses were delayed long enough to allow the officers to come up and arrest them.

A local resident who had invested much of his spare capital in home cooking at a bazaar that is being conducted in the village started home Wednesday evening with his car. When on Norwich avenue, there was a strange sound under the car, and one of the local occupants remarked that the tire must be flat, but they continued home, where they discovered that the food had disappeared. The motorist remembered that he had placed it on the running board of the car, and the party raced back to the spot where the remark was made about the puncture, only to find another motor party gathering up the cakes which were strewn about the road. An explanation was made and the food was turned over to its rightful owner.

Jack-the-Hugger continues to operate in the southwestern part of the village, and on the ball field. Several young women of the village have reported being chased by this mysterious person, and those who have had a close look at him, state that he is a stranger in this section. Send this advertisement to The Plant-Cadden Co., Norwich, Conn., with your name and address and get a book of old fashioned songs free—adv.

F. C. Wilcox of Providence was a business caller in the village Thursday. The Wagonway school children will visit the Industrial Exposition at the state armory in Norwich today.

The Thursday evening basketball class met Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponamah building.

AUTO TRUCKS RUN WILD, LANDING IN CHURCH AND AGAINST BRIDGE

Two motor trucks running wild made up the Thursday list of automobile accidents in Norwich. One landed in the vestibule of the United Congregational church on Broadway and the other brought up against the railing of the eastern bridge, West Main street, which prevented it from plunging into the Yantic river.

The first accident happened at 11 in the morning when the auto truck of the Arrow Oil Co., of Broadway, driven by George Smith of North E street, Taftville, ran down the Church street hill, across Union square and crashed through the middle of the three big front doors of the United Congregational church.

With its load of filled oil cans, the truck was said to weigh about four tons, when it was left standing by the curb on Church street by Driver Smith as he went to a place to deliver some oil. The engine was left running, but the wheels turned into the curb and the brakes became loosened and the car started down the hill.

Driver Smith, who was going up a flight of steps at the time, saw the truck start and dashed after it, but was unable to jump aboard to put on the brakes. He shouted a warning as he ran along with the truck, which first careened into the gutter and grazed a hydrant at the corner of the old Y. M. C. A. building. This ripped the mudguards off that side of the truck, which kept on its way to the Otis library corner, where it seemed to be headed down into Chestnut street towards the public service cars that are parked along the curb there. The driver of the public service car scattered to avoid the impending crash, but the truck straightened out, and headed directly for the church.

Ducking through between the touring car of John P. Huntington and another machine that were parked at the curb, up three steps and through the center doors of the church, both doors were torn loose, one of them falling against a table that was standing in the vestibule, and the machine came to a stop with half its length inside the vestibule. The table was pushed back against the wall and smashed the glass in the frame of the front roll.

A woman and child who were on the sidewalk in the path of the oncoming car were warned by the shouts of Driver Smith and the hymenees, so that they got out of the way.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the church, who was in his study over the Otis library, heard the crash as the truck hit the hydrant and from the study window saw it make its dash across Union square and into the church. Sexton Hans Rasmussen was in the church when the machine crashed into the vestibule with a noise that Mr. Rasmussen thought must be an earthquake.

Driver Smith reported the accident at police headquarters and was ordered by State Policeman M. R. Sterling to be in court Friday morning to answer to the charge of leaving his car with the engine running. Later on Mr. Smith said he thought the oscillation of the heavy truck hit the hydrant and had something to do with starting the truck, as the cans would continue to sway for some time after the truck had been brought to a stop.

The truck had its mudguard torn completely off on the right hand side, its headlights broken, its steering wheel made useless and gears broken in the clutch. The engine was started while the car was inside the church and with the help of the interested spectators it was backed into the street, where it was left to have its load of gasoline taken out and later was towed down into Willow street.

Later in the afternoon the smashed doorway at the church was boarded up.

Broke Bridge Railing.

About 3:30 Thursday afternoon a big Westford are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chenette of No. 14 South E street.

Mrs. Armand Chenette is a patient at Backus hospital where she underwent an operation on Tuesday morning for appendicitis.

CHRIST CHURCH CHRISTMAS SALE IS BIG SUCCESS

The annual Christmas sale by Christ Episcopal church, held Thursday afternoon at the Wauregan hotel. The sale was in charge of the women of the Church Service league, with Miss Katharine A. SLIDES IN ANOTHER CAR IN FRANKLIN SQUARE

A Dodge touring car driven by Patrick J. Fogarty of Taftville lost a left front wheel and suffered a damaged left front fender about 2:30 o'clock Thursday evening as the result of a collision with an Oldsmobile car driven by Milton Green of the East Side.

Mr. Green was making the turn from Franklin street around the silent policeman in Franklin square to turn to Main street proceeding east, when Mr. Fogarty came west on Main street across Franklin square. Mr. Fogarty, seeing the car ahead, endeavored to stop but owing to the icy condition of the street slid into the rear end of the Green car.

The Dodge car was halted to the side of the street and left to await the arrival of a wrecker, but the Oldsmobile was not damaged and proceeded on its way. The accident was reported to the police.

FINDS STONINGTON MAN GUILTY OF NON-SUPPORT

A jury in the criminal court of common pleas on Wednesday found Henry H. Robinson of Stonington guilty of non-support of his wife, Anna J. Robinson of Stonington. He was placed under bonds of $250 and was ordered to pay his wife $5 a week for 52 weeks.

Robinson's defense on the witness stand was that after he and his wife had lived apart for several years by acquiescence, she with her father and with his mother, he offered to marry her for his wife with him and his mother and she refused.

FIRE APPARATUS MADE

Responding to a call for help at a Colchester fire late Wednesday night, the Norwiche engine Co. of New London is reported to have made the 20 miles to Colchester in 20 minutes over the new cement road. A two and a half story frame dwelling house owned and occupied by Arthur H. Chapman was burned before the New London firemen could get there. It was about opposite Bacon academy in the center of the village. The loss is said to be about $2,500 with insurance for $2,000.

RUMMAGE SALE PROCEEDS REPORTED AT $20

The Catholic Women's club held their regular business meeting Thursday afternoon in the rooms of the Ladies of Columbus with the president, Mrs. Nelson Disco, presiding. The usual routine reports were heard and accepted. It was reported that the recent rummage sale netted $20. The members of the club expressed their appreciation of the assistance given them by Daniel J. Hinchey, Alice Pasnik and Morgan Cronin.

Primary Council Meeting.

About thirty members of the Norwich Primary council attended the December meeting at Broadway school on Tuesday evening. Following the supper and a short business session all adjourned to the kindergarten room where an hour of fun and frolic was enjoyed under the charge of the executive committee. The teachers proved to be real "artists" and worthy descendants of Diana, the huntress.

The next meeting will be held on Jan. 2, when Miss Teresa Brown, principal of the Saltonstall school, New London, will be the speaker.

THE MOON PATH

There's a glowing silver path across the water to the moon—Stretching far beyond the combers that are breaking on the beach. There is music past believing in the wavellet's lapping croon, And our ecstasy, who listen, is beyond the realm of speech.

We can merely sit and wonder at the glory of it all—Sit and rapturously dream upon the dune; For our souls have gone a-gypsying, gone straying past recall, On that path across the water to the moon.

There is darkness soft, diaphanous as silken laces are, On each selva of that path across the water to the moon, And the further side of Nevermore is less remote by far Than the bourne our souls go seeking on that glittering lagoon.

So we sit and doubly marvel at the splendor of it all! Though our earthly selves lie prone upon the dune, Yet our spirits go a-gypsying, go a-straying past recall, On that path across the water to the moon.
